No building is complete without a harmoniously integrated exterior and interior. That is why the meaningful integration of architecture, interior architecture and product design are at the core of our design work. Our works include interior design for offices, theaters, retail, hotels and also private homes. The designs follow a sustainable approach, demanding an anticipation of future needs and as such reversible interiors in a comprehensive adaptive design. A stimulating and lively environment is a flexible and reactive one, in which different needs, for concentration or relaxation, communication or meditation, can all be achieved, at various times and places. We design healthy environments with materials and building systems which are not chemically or physically damaging to the environment, construction workers, or users. Layout, light, materials, colors are all designed and selected with respect to a seamless experience from exterior to interior, not following a fashion or style but addressing the client's and user's needs.
